IS THERE PROFITEERING IN BENTLEYVILLE TAX LIENS?

Citizens of Town Hold Indignation Meeting to Make Protest

OFFER MADE BY PURCHASERS

An indignation meeting was held by the citizens of Bentleyvile on Monday night last to take action with reference to the sale of a number of properties on county tax liens. The meeting was held in the Methodist church, with Burgess Hetherington presiding, who stated the object of the meeting. An organization was effected by electing Julius Nichols as chairman and Rev. W. H. Debolt secretary.

Sentiment was so strong that a permanent organization was formed to take whatever action is possible to protect the interests of the citizens of the community. Julius Nichols is president of the permanent organization; C. K. Frye secretary and Rev. A. T. Carr, treasurer. An executive committee of six members was also noted.

During the course of the meeting it was shown that about 50 properties, most of which are owned by foreigners, had been sold on tax liens. Some of these properties were sold while the owners were serving in the United States Army or had been killed in action, being unable to attend to their affairs as a result.

Miss Birdie Crouch of Bentleyville gave her experience. She bought a property from a foreign and was greatly surprised when visited by County Controller T. J. Underwood, who informed her that he had a deed for the property. It had been sold for 1915 taxes, for which she held the receipt. Controller Underwood informed her that it would cost her from $1,800 to $2,000 to get the property back. He referred her to Herbert H. Hertzog, cashier of the Farmers and Miners National Bank of Bentleyville, who, he said, would be able to tell her the exact amount. Miss Crouch was in Bentleyville on Thursday and secured an adjustment on her property.

Mr. Hertzog spoke at the meeting and said that a number of properties in Bentleyville were in danger of being sold on account of non-payment of taxes, but that Controller Underwood was wiling to make any fair and amicabe settlement. Because of the large number of loans the bank had made Mr. Hertzog said he had asked Mr. Underwood for a list of properties to be sold for taxes and then had sent written notice to the owners.

J. E. Richardson said he had gone to foreigners whose property was advertised, and told them of the coming sale, but he said they had only laughed at him.

Controller Underwood was communicated with during the progress of the meeting and came to Bentleyville. After consulting with Mr. Hertzog he addressed the meeting and said he was willing to return properties of widows he had purchased, and that he would pay the costs of recording in such cases. When a plea for generosity was made Mr. Underwood said he was willing, if those associated with him would do likewise, to make a settlement by the owners paying the taxes, interest and 20 per cent of the purchase price or present value. He said he had been associated with Messrs Hertzog and Richardson for two years, and that they had gone to considerable expense. The proposition, he said, would not yield more than 6 per cent.

Bentleyville citizens are greatly disturbed over the situation. On Wednesday of last week Controller Underwood in company with a Bentleyville man is said to have visited the supposed owners of a number of properties he had purchased. "I have the deed and you back ahead," is the remark he is alleged to have made when they insisted that they owned the property and not he. Further developments are expected.

OLD LAND TURTLE FOUND NEAR SCENERY HILL

L. V. VanVoorhis, when a youth at the home of his father, the late Isaac VanVoorhis, near Scenery Hill found a land turtle in the VanVoorhis orchard upon which he carved his initials and the date, "June 17, 1873." Recently his brother Charles, who lives at the old homestead east of Scenery Hill, found the turtle again not far from the spot where seen 47 years ago. Mr. VanVoorhis carved the date of its second finding, "June, 1920," and its shell and released it to roam again.

GIRL MISSING SINCE YESTERDAY

Josephine Marchiafava, or Marchiafe, aged about 16 years, who lives at 1133 Prospect alley, left home Thursday morning about 11 o'clock, since which time her parents have had no knowledge of her whereabouts. They searched all yesterday afternoon and all last night, but trace of the missing girl could be found. The police have been notified and are assisting in the search. When the girl left home she wore a green dress, with dark brown shoes and had a white ribbon on her head. She has light brown hair. Any information of her whereabouts sent to the Charleroi police will at once be communicated to the parents of the girl, who are very anxious about her.

Joseph Pearson, Kenneth Watterson and Harold and Lester Beaz will are attending the Epworth League Convention that is being held at Mountain Lake Park, Maryland this week.

Pennsylvania Railroad Co. Is Fighting Water Pollution

Additional complaints by the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. against coal companies in the Indian Creek valley emphasize the importance of the suit, which gives promise of being the most interesting contest in the Fayette county courts for some time. The railroad company is seeking to prevent coal companies on the watershed from draining water from the mines into Indian creek.

The claim of the railroad is that extensive dams, reservoirs, pipe lines and other equipment will be rendered valueless if the new mines are permitted to drain polluted water into the stream. The property rights of the Pennsylvania railroad along the creek approximate $7,500,000, it is set forth.

The creek water serves the Pennsylvania system between Youngwood and Brownsville it is set forth, for engines and drinking purposes. The sulphur from the mines, it is claimed, has destroyed the purity of the water and made it worthless for drinking purposes or to use in the engine boilers.

The suits are brought in the name of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, the Mountain Water Supply company and the Dunbar Water Supply company. Complaints so far have been filed against John I. Rogers for the Indian Creek Coal company; H. I. Fisher for the Indian Creek Valley Coal company; Rogers Coal company, Crooked Creek Coal Mining company and George Warrick. C. S. Pore and Howard Speicher of the Warwick Coal company.

WILL RAISE VESTA BY CHAIN METHOD

Efforts to pump out the steamer Vesta, which sank in the Monongahela river near Allenport several weeks ago having proved futile, it is now proposed to go back to the old system of lifting the boat on chains. Two big steel barges will be ancored on either side of the sunken steamer, chains passed under her hull, and by means of screws the boat will be gradualy lifted to the surface of the water where it will be pumped out. This method will take several days to accomplish the purpose intended, but there is no question as to the success of the undertaking. The cabin and upper works of the Vesta were about destroyed when the boat was sunk, but the boilers and machinery did not go by the board. It will take several weeks to get the boat in commission.

WEST BETHLEHEM MAY BE DIVIDED

Factional strife in West Bethlehem township may result in the division of that township, due to the feeling that has arisen over the location of the high school of the district. The matter was presented in court at Washington, and Grant E. Hess, R. J. McCleary and A. R. McClurg have been appointed commissioners. They will meet at the school house in Scenery Hill on Tuesday, August 10, to hear testimony from the persons interested. The division if approved by the commissioners, wil be submitted to the voters at an election.

The feeling between the two factions has arisen over the location of

PORTION OF PAYROLL FOUND NEAR SCENE

Making a complete confession as to his part in the recent robbery of the Vesta mine payroll robbery, Julius Carzone who, was arrested on the day of the robbery, was on Thursday taken to the scene of the crime by County Detectives Laird and Weiner, to whom he showed where he had thrown $1,073.67, a part of the loot taken by the four bandits from the paymaster last Tuesday morning.

Carzone had tied the money in a handkerchief and as he was about to be apprehended by Superintendent Joseph Eowards while trying to escape by way of the old Yorty entrance on the Daisytown road, tossed the money and revolver into the grass. From last Tuesday afternoon until last evening the big sum of money had lain in the grass. Officials expressed surprise that it had not been found by persons attracted to the Yorty entrance, knowing that it was the spot where Carzone had been captured after the sensational holdup.

Practically all of the money was intact in the envelope in which it had been placed to pay employes. Two had been broken and their contents were found in the handkerchief.

Carzone in his confession exploded the theory that his three fellow bandits had escaped in an old Hupmobile. He declared that each acquired a share of the money and then separated. The machine in which they were thought to have escaped is owned by a man who is doing a contracting job in that vicinity and was there yesterday.

No further arrests have been made but the officers say they know who the other three men are who are implicated in the crime.

REPAIRS TO SPEERS ROAD A MATTER OF PUBLIC CONCERN

Proposition from Outside Citizens Not Accepted By Council

MAY REPAIR SOME TIME LATER

The question of repairs to the brick portion of the Speers road, between Charleroi and Speers seems to have been a topic of discussion of late, coupled as it is with a proposition made by a number of citizens that they would pay for the repairs providing the Speers borough council would give the necessary permit.

The Mail on Thursday, called up William Steel of Speers, who is president of the council of that borough and asked him concerning the situation. He said that H. W. Scott of North Charleroi, had made a proposition that contractor Thomas Arigo had agreed to repair the road at a point a short distance above the Maple creek bridge, for the sum of $25.00. Mr. Steel said the borough council did not think it good business to begin repair work at such a low figure, as you could hardly "turn around" for such a sum.

Mr. Steel further said that outside people were taking a great deal of interest of late in this stretch of road, many having called by phone to find out if the council was going to do anything. When the question was asked Mr. Steel if council proposed taking action in the matter, he said it would "after while."

At the same time he said the roads in Speers borough were no worse than some in Charleroi and called particular attention to upper McKean avenue, which, he said, you could hardly drive over.

However, it is pointed out that repairs to the Speers road at the present time could be completed for a comparatively small sum and, that as it is an important connecting piece of highway it was doubly important that it receive attention at a very early day. The fact that Charleroi streets are in bad shape should not serve to draw attention away from the necessity of immediate attention to the brick highway in Speers borough. Charleroi's council proposes to repair Lincoln avenue extension this summer. This is an important link in the improved highway system of this section of the valley, and is just as important to the outsider as to the citizens of this borough. Let Speers take the same attitude and they will also get busy on the roadway leading along the river.

ATTENDING FUNERAL AT CLAYSVILLE TODAY

Rev. John R. Burson left this morning for Claysville, called there by the death of Mrs. Harvey Andrew, aged 88 years. Funeral services were held this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock conducted by Rev. Burson with interment in Prosperity cemetery. Mrs. Young was a member of the Fairview church, a former parishioner of Rev. Burson, when he had charge of the Concord and Fairview churches. The deceased was one of the pioneer residents of that district, and was a highly esteemed lady.

TWO MORE BOATS TO THE OIL TRADE

The towboats Fallie and Enterprise have been purchased by a Mexican oil company from the Pittsburg Coal company, it was announced on Wednesday. They will leave on Saturday for New Orleans, where they will be loaded on barges and towed to Tampico, Mexico, to be operated in the Panuco river oil towing trade.

Both boats are in first class condition, having recently been overhauled at the Elizabeth Marine Ways. The Fallie was built by the McKinley Coal company in 1894 and later sold to the M. R. C. C. & C. company at its formation in 1898. The Enterprise was built by the River Coal company in 1900, as a successor of the old Enterprise, which had been taken over with the effects of the W. W. O'Neil Coal company when the merger was made two years previously.

Quite a number of former Pittsburg boats are in the oil trade at Tampico, having been purchased several years ago. The sale of the two boats noted above will take two well known steamers from the Pittsburg district, and will further deplete the fleet of the Pittsburg Coal company, which is now quite small in comparison with former years.

PULVERIZED COAL FOR OPEN HEARTH

Pulverized coal is being tried out with success at some of the open hearth furnaces in Donora. Five furnaces, it is stated, are being prepared to use this character of fuel, following experiments made at No. 9 furnace during the past few weeks. It has been so successful that other furnaces are being fitted up to use the pulverized grade.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wise of Washington avenue, left this morning for Atlantic City, where they will remain for an indefinite stay.

Marriage license was issued in Pittsburg on Thursday to Charles B. Bosworth of Charleroi and Blanche V. Peigh, of Morgantown, W. Va.

I will collect that rent, positively in advance and guarantee no vacancies. Clyde B. Cone, Real Estate and Insurance, 315 McKean avenue. 21-tf*

MOON AS ALLY OF FARMER

Agriculturist Asserts He Courts His Sweetheart and Plants His Corn by Luna's Light.

A contributor to the New York Tribune, living in the country, is alarmed lest the scientists blow up the moon. He very properly says that the city man doesn't appreciate the moon; in fact, he seldom sees it. But out in the country the moon serves a real purpose, and it ought to be protected from onslaughts from the rockets of the scientists. The contributor's letter is so delightful, and as it contains as much wisdom as many other letters we read we quote at length:

"Nobody knows what the moon is made of. Maybe it's made out of some kind of mineral that will explode when this flash powder goes off on it. And let me tell you, Mr. Editor, that wouldn't be a very funny thing for anybody to have the moon blow up.

"Folks in the city don't know anything about the moon, whether it is anything or whether it ain't, and they don't care. But we folks that live in the country use the moon a great deal. I courted my wife by moonlight, and my oldest boy is doing the same thing with his girl. I've planted my corn in the full of the moon for forty years and never had a poor crop. Besides, we use the moon in lots of other ways. I can't hardly think what life would be here in the country without the moon."

Aye, aye, sir, we are for you—especially since you seem to know how to court. It has been a marvel to us for years how a city boy manages to fall in love with a girl when the light came from an electric bulb instead of from the friendly moon.—Columbus Dispatch.

PILGRIM WORTHY OF HONOR

Elder Brewster Gave Up Much When He Abandoned His Home for a Great Principle.

Gone is the ancient pear tree, and no trace remains of the mulberry tree planted by Cardinal Wolsey, under the welcome shade of which Sir Edwyn Sandys sat in the long summer days of 1575 at Scrooby manor, but Pilgrims in England in 1920 need not neglect to raise their hats to the memory of Elder Brewster at his one-time home, because special arrangements have been made for escorting parties to the haunts of Pilgrim Fathers during the tercentenary year. All the Fathers made great sacrifices, but one will be tempted to think that William Brewster made perhaps more than most when one sees the ruins of his palatial home he left. Traces of the moat still exist, and some of the great carved beams can be found in stables and cowsheds nearby. The size of his house can be realized when it is remembered that it was large enough to shelter Margaret Tudor and her entire retinue on her royal procession to Scotland.—Christian Science Monitor.

One Man Is Crew.

Recent naval tests have disclosed the remarkable characteristics of a new form of miniature torpedo boat, so low in the water that it has almost the invisibility of a submarine, according to a recent announcement in Popular Mechanics Magazine, accompanied by several interesting illustrations of the curious craft. It is operated by one man. It is but 40 feet long, and weighs 8,500 pounds with its single torpedo. The entire forward half of the boat is the torpedo chamber, and that part of the hull is U-shaped to conform to the big projectile, while the deck above is hinged along one side to permit the torpedo to be hoisted in. To discharge it, the whole rounded bow plate is lifted up like a gate, flooding the chamber and permitting the torpedo to go forth on the power of its own propeller.

Catch a Freak Fish.

A freak fish, 11 feet long and weighing 500 pounds, was brought to port by Capt. Steve Massa of the smack Ardita, reports a San Diego (Cal.) correspondent. The fish was caught in a sea bass net off Point Loma at a depth of 30 feet. The fish had a mouth two feet in diameter, no teeth, purple eyes, a short, blunt nose, with a sharp horn composed of solid bone and a skin like a rhinoceros. A. L. Manahan of the state fish and game commission and Capt. W. C. Crandall of the California Biological institute at La Jolla were unable to identify the piscatorial freak. Photographs were taken of the fish and were sent to the University of California in an effort to trace its ancestry.

Again, Leather From the Sea.

Considerable interest is at present being shown in the possibility of utilizing the skins of sharks and porpoises for the making of shoe leather. The bureau of standards has completed arrangements to test the comparative durability of upper leather made from shark and porpoise skins as compared with that from calfskin and cowhide. The co-operation of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' association has been secured in the making of the necessary shoes for the test. It is believed that the results of this investigation will be watched with considerable interest.—Scientific American.

Rays of Light Cause Mirage.

Mirage is the name given to a certain optical illusion caused by the bending of rays of light in the desert atmosphere. Mirages may appear to the eye as lakes, cities, basaltic precipices, etc., the huge body of water retreating as the eye advances. Mirages are not uncommon in California, Nevada and Alaska.

Exempted for Reason.

When parliament of the commonwealth of Australia enacted a law some years ago prohibiting the employment of Asiatic and native island laborers in that country, the crews, divers and other workers in the pearl industry at Broome were Malays and Japanese. More than 1,500 Japanese were employed in the pearl-fishing fleets. For a time it was feared that the new law would destroy the industry, but no attempt was made to enforce the law.

World's Greatest Cataract.

What is set down as the greatest cataract in the world is on the Iguazu river, which partly separates Brazil and Argentina. The precipice over which the river plunges is 210 feet high, that of Niagara being 167 feet. The cataract is 13,123 feet wide, or about two and a half times as wide as Niagara. It is estimated that 100,000,000 tons of water pass over Niagara in an hour. A like estimate gives the falls of Iguazu 140,000,000 tons.

Definition of Kindness.

The teacher of the intermediate room had been trying to teach her pupils the value of many virtues—such as truthfulness, honesty, kindness, etc. To test their knowledge she gave them an examination, asking for definitions for these virtues. One youngster defined kindness in this way: "Kindness is being kind to every human creature from a cat on up."

First Piano Ad in New York.

New York's first piano advertisement was printed on Jan. 10, 1789. John Jacob Astor, whose store was at 81 Queen street, "next door but one to the Friends' meeting house," was the advertiser. He announced the sale of "an assortment of pianofortes of the newest construction, made by the best makers of London."

Franklin Still Popular.

Books printed by Benjamin Franklin, or on the composition of which he worked, command high prices. At a sale in Philadelphia of a library containing books that had belonged to a signer of the Declaration of Independence, no less than thirty of these rarities, many of them bearing Franklin's imprint, were disposed of.

In the law of nations every nation is just so much interested as every citizen in the laws of his country.—Daniel Webster.

THAT SOUND IN THE NIGHT

Nothing So Very Terrible, but at Least Henry Found Out Just What Caused It.

It certainly was a strange sound—even though at midnight all sounds are strange. Mrs. Meekton nudged her husband hard.

"Henry," she whispered, loudly, "wake up at once, and go downstairs! It sounds like burglars!"

"Yes, my dear," replied Henry, nervously. "But I don't—"

"If you don't go at once," stated his better half, "I will go myself!"

"I shall certainly go, Maria," Henry said with dignity; then he added, "if I hear it again."

"No, go now," ordered Maria, "or I shall shriek for the police, and tell them that you made no attempt to capture the thieves!"

"Very well," replied Henry, through trembling lips; "but let me kiss you and the baby before I go, and when he grows up tell him that his brave daddy jumped out of bed one bitter night and boldly attacked several armed burglars and fought with them till he was overpowered and—"

"O-o-o-oh, Henry, there it is again! Go at once!" yelled Maria, giving him a mighty push.

And Henry went downstairs, trembling violently. Cautiously opening the kitchen door he turned on the electric light—and found the kitten playing with baby's india-rubber ball.

TO TEACH BLIND TO DRAW

English Idea Is That Art May Help the Sightless to Communicate With Outside World.

One of the many experiments of the Royal Drawing society has been to teach people to draw by touch. The pupil is blindfolded and feels a simple shape, like a hammer of a spade, and draws it with his eyes open. An advanced pupil has drawn the head of a classical bust and the mask of Beethoven.

Those experiments fired Mr. C. R. Ablett, the director of the society, with the idea of drawing by the blind. He has devised a medium which looks like the frosted stuff on a matchbox made rapid, by which the draughtsman can follow by touch what he has drawn and correct or add to his work. So far there have been no experiments with a blind pupil.

Mr. Ablett does not claim for it more than that a blind man can draw the plan or a design of something he wishes to record and explain. A blind gardener has been known to go into ecstasies over the unfolding shapes of a plant, and the drawing of these shapes, known to him by touch would undoubtedly give him a form of esthetic pleasure. In any case, it would increase his means of communicating with the outside world.

A great boon, if the method is practicable, would be that it would enable the blind to write and to read writing.—Manchester Guardian.

Airplanes Will Aid Mining.

It is predicted that the airplane and the dirigible will prove a great stimulus to the mining industry in presenting a means of getting material and men to and from locations which are known to be rich with ore and which are at the present time inaccessible. There are many such places known to exist, but the cost of building a roadway to them would be so great as to be prohibitive. Attention to this phase of the subject has been recently attracted by a report made by Doctor Lyon, supervisor of the mining stations for the United States bureau of mines. By this means a regular communication could be maintained with sections which are not to be reached by any ordinary means. It is also suggested that the same means might be of great value for getting rescue apparatus to the scene of mining disasters.

The dilapidated old shack, still standing at Eastport, Me., is of interest by reason of its being the starting place of the great American sardine industry.

The experiment of converting the small herring into the canned sardine was tried out in this factory, built for that purpose by Julius Wolff, a Russian, and other New York promoters nearly forty years ago. At that time the picturesque weirs, in which the fish are seined, usually joined the factory property.

From its birth, in this small factory, sardine canning has developed to almost the chief industry on the Maine coast, employing thousands of skilled workers each season, and has placed Eastport on the map as one of the most important fishing ports in the country.

Locomotive Rolled Over.

After a storm that buried the New England coast in snow last March passengers on a railroad line through Rhode Island were amazed to observe a locomotive standing upright in a swampy brook that runs under the right of way at one point. The engine started out with a snowplow to clear the track, but jumped the rails at the brook trestle, the plow going one way and its motive power the other. Confronted, then, by the problem of removing the new obstruction, and not caring to devote three engines to getting one back on the track, the rail men cut the Gordian knot by rolling the big locomotive down the embankment. Despite the slide and plunge, it finished right side up.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

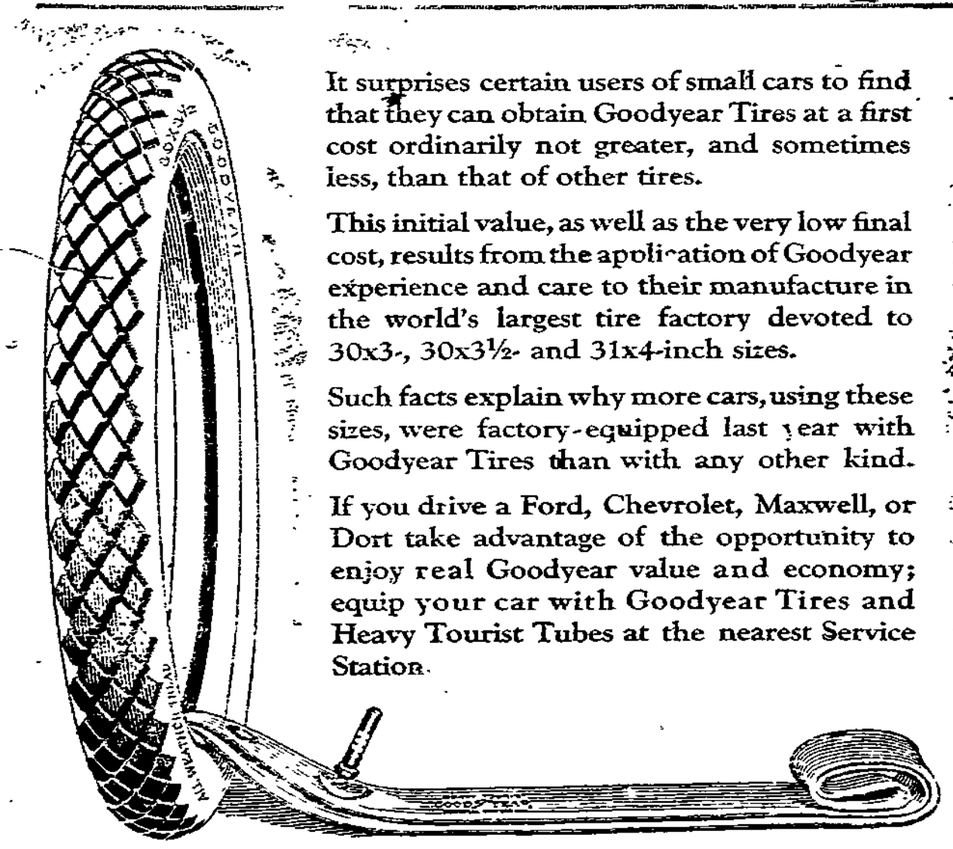
Ride on Goodyear Tires in That Sturdy Small Car of Yours



It surprises certain users of small cars to find that they can obtain Goodyear Tires at a first cost ordinarily not greater, and sometimes less, than that of other tires.

This initial value, as well as the very low final cost, results from the application of Goodyear experience and care to their manufacture in the world's largest tire factory devoted to 30x3-, 30x3½- and 31x4-inch sizes.

Such facts explain why more cars, using these sizes, were factory-equipped last year with Goodyear Tires than with any other kind.

If you drive a Ford, Chevrolet, Maxwell, or Dort take advantage of the opportunity to enjoy real Goodyear value and economy; equip your car with Goodyear Tires and Heavy Tourist Tubes at the nearest Service Station.

30 x 3½ Goodyear Double-Cure Fabric, All-Weather Tread $23.50

30 x 3½ Goodyear Single-Cure Fabric, Anti-Skid Tread... $21.50

Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes cost no more than the price you are asked to pay for tubes of less merit—why risk costly casings when such sure protection is available? 30 x 3½ size in waterproof bag---------- $4.50

What Does "Kitchen Economy" Mean?

Is it Found in Your Home?

A great many people thinks that "Kitchen Economy" means cooking without waste and they would be partly right—but only partly.

True Economy means making every dollar spent produce its utmost return in value. That's why

LIVES CHIEFLY IN MEMORIES

Sleepy Little Pennsylvania Community Has But One Really Busy Season in the Year.

Within the limits of the city of Philadelphia, yet separate from the municipality proper, is the little village of Bustleton. Unlike its name, it is a sleepy community, peopled mostly by retired farmers.

Bustleton is replete with historic lore. Old Bill Tilyer's Union hotel is a relic of the days when British and colonial troops overran the country. One sleeping chamber in the ancient inn contains a great four-poster bed in which, so the historians of the village say, once slept "Mad Anthony" Wayne.

Stories of midnight raids by British cavalry patrols, duels fought between the young bloods of the Quaker city in a grove in back of the inn, and ghosts of colonial soldiers stalking through the long halls of the structure, are told with great gusto by Bill Tilyer. The Union hotel has been handed down from father to son in the Tilyer family for nearly two centuries.

But there is one time in the year when Bustleton really bustles. That is in the month of September, when the mushroom season opens. At sunrise dozens of men and boys may be seen plodding through the dew-laden pasture fields, armed with buckets and baskets. For the fertile fields in and around Bustleton yield many bushels of mushrooms, which are sold at the various markets in Philadelphia.

CAN TAKE PRIDE IN HOUSE

Domicile Expresses Personality That Can Be Pleasing, or the Reverse, as May Be.

But the best of a house is that it has an outside personality as well as an inside one. Nobody, not even himself, could admire a man's flat from the street; nobody could look up and say, "What very delightful people must live behind those third-floor windows." Here it is different. Any of you may find himself some day in our quiet street, and stop a moment to look at our house; at the blue door with its jolly knocker, at the little trees in their blue tubs standing within a ring of blue posts linked by chains, at the bright-colored curtains. You may like it, but we shall be watching you from one of the windows, and telling each other that you do. In any case, we have the pleasure of looking at ourselves, and feeling that we are contributing something to London, whether for better or for worse. We are part of a street now, and can take pride in that street. Before, we were only part of a big unmanageable building.—From "Not That It Matters," by A. A. Milne.

Hawthorne.

Dumas called himself a dramatic poet: Hawthorne claimed to be writer of fiction. Both were about equally near the truth. Hawthorne invented so much fiction as should serve to illustrate his doctrines; and he invented it for that purpose. It had a secondary rank in his thoughts and in his affections, though it is probable that he was not aware of the fact. He was, indeed, not a dramatic poet, not a novelist, not a historian; he was a moralist, a philosophic moralist, calling upon history, fiction, and poetry to illuminate and enforce his tenets. As an ingenious moral philosopher and essayist, rendering his teachings impressive by the use of fabrics more or less elaborate, he may well take rank with the most elegant and accomplished writers of his class. —J. C. Heywood.

Books.

Read not to contradict and confute; not to believe and take for granted; not to find talk and discourse; but to weigh and consider. Some books are to be tested, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested; that is, some books are to be read only in parts; others to be read, but not curiously; and some few to be read wholly with diligence and attention. Some books also may be read by deputy, and extracts made of them by others; but that should be only less important arguments, and the meaner sort of books; else distilled books are like common distilled waters, flashy things.—Lord Bacon.

For over 200 years all Christians were communists, who held the land and waters as well as all timber and precious metals in common. There were no superior ecclesiastics among them. The lot was cast in deciding all questions and the assembled commune judged all disputes; and when any decision was not well pleasing, the whole community passed review on it and reversed or confirmed it according to the will of all. This bold democracy was an inheritance from the Jews and was held in abhorrence by pagans who trafficked in land and made profits from others' labor.—Rollins' Ancient History.

Meanest Yet.

Sales Manager—Well, Jobble, how did that last prospect turn out?

Vacuum Cleaner Canvasser—The original Mrs. Gaspard, the well-known miser's worst half! That dame let me demonstrate the machine till I made her best rug look like new and then all I got was a demand for a quarter of a dollar to pay for the electricity she estimated I'd used.—Buffalo Express.

That Morning Grouch.

Morning "grouchiness" is frequently nothing more than a product of the late hour habit. So is a tendency to see the world at all times through smoked glasses. Prolong the hours of sleep and optimism may soon replace the pessimism deplorably in evidence in many short sleepers. And with the change in mood will come an increase in working power. For pessimists are notoriously inefficient workers, if only because of the mental and physical demoralization which pessimism always involves in some degree.

Carnegie Pension Fund.

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching provides retiring pensions for the teachers of universities, colleges and technical schools in the United States, Canada and Newfoundland, which are on their accredited list. The pension is given to a teacher who has reached the age of sixty-five years and has given specified service or to one who has served 25 years as a professor or 20 years as a professor and instructor, in the case of physical disability.

Miracles Due to Mothers.

Medicine can to some extent prevent disease from attacking the child, medicine cannot perform miracles. It is a miracle if children brought up in foul and evil surroundings grow up healthy and wholesome men and women. The miracle, incidentally, is usually accomplished not by doctors but by the self-sacrifice and heroism of the mother of the children, who too often loses her own health in the process.—London Times.

Language and Thought.

Language is properly the servant of thought, but not unfrequently becomes its master. The conceptions of a feeble writer are greatly modified by his style; a man of vigorous powers makes his style bend to his conceptions—a fact compatible enough with the acknowledgment of Dryden that a rhyme had often helped him to an idea.—Clulow.

Music a Necessity.

Music is not one of the luxurious superfluities in our time. It has come to be classed as a necessity. It is, like flowers, the staff of life to the hungry soul upon a pilgrimage. It is in relief to all the strident and discordant sounds made in the fevered industrial rack and turmoil of "man's fitful uproar mingling with his toil."

Contract Marriages.

Contract marriage is now the commonly accepted doctrine that marriage is a civil contract requiring only the free and intelligent consent of parties capable of contracting. A contract of this sort, drawn up and signed, is a marriage in the eyes of the law in all the states.

Stature Inherited.

Not only is stature as a whole inherited, but also, and even more clearly, each segment of stature, such as neck, length of torso, thigh and foreleg. And the inheritance of the length of these segments follows the same law as does the length of stature as a whole.

Admiration for Bravery.

If there be one thing upon this earth that mankind loves and admires better than another, it is a brave man—it is a man who dares to look the devil in the face and tell him he is a devil.—President Garfield.

Youthful Diplomacy.

Little Roy and his cousin were sitting on an arm chair in rather close quarters, when Roy said: "Mary, there would be more room for me on this chair if one of us gets off."—Boston Transcript.

Flossy Gelatin.

An Englishman has discovered a process whereby iridescent and mother of pearl effects can be given to sheets of gelatin, useful for many purposes.

Checks Mine Fires.

To check the spread of flames in mine explosions an automatic device has been invented that scatters rock dust into the rushing air that precedes them.

Experts have estimated for the government that Holland's coal deposits contain more than 5,000,000 tons, but none of it is first grade fuel.

What Makes One Old?

According to a Roumanian scientist, old age is due solely to a decrease in the amount of water in the human system.

Electric Plant on Coal Fields.

The modern method of building an electric-generating plant directly over a coal supply, and transmitting energy instead of fuel to the point of consumption, is to be employed by the state of Victoria, Australia, for supplying the city of Melbourne. The field of brown coal to be used immediately is at Morwell, 80 miles away, and is accessible by open cutting. There is, it is estimated, 20,000,000,000 tons in the district and 150,000,000 tons in one square mile, enough to generate 100,000 kilowatts for 150 years. A 40,000 to 50,000 kilowatt station will be built first, which will be sufficient for three years, but later the development will be extended and finally include the utilization of the Kiewa river and other water powers.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Corn-Cob Industry.

The United States produces from 2,500,000,000 to 3,000,000,000 bushels of corn every year. That means 15,000,000 or 20,000,000 tons of cobs. A large percentage of course, is not available for manufacturing purposes, being scattered over the farms or fed with the corn. Large quantities, however, are concentrated at central points and are easily available. The establishment of a plant for the manufacture of corn-cob products in the Ohio valley is being contemplated. Three shellers will furnish 24,000 tons of cobs a year. The plant will operate on a basis of 100 tons a day. It will turn out cob adhesive, furfural, acetate of lime and cellulose.

The Philadelphia wireless school gives a concert between 9:45 and 10 o'clock every night to everybody in wireless range that has a receiving set and wishes to listen, and the music is enjoyed regularly by at least 5,000 persons sitting comfortably in their homes, one of them as far away as New Brunswick, N. J. One man in Chestnut Hill made his own receiving set and the outfit, outside of the receivers, cost him about $7.50.

GOOD CROP PROSPECTS

As usual the agricultural situation is proving to be better than was indicated by the forecasts. Apparently there are now good prospects not only of good harvests but of plentiful labor. After all there is to be no rotting of unreaped crops even an over suppy of labor being reported from some of the great grain producing sections. For example an Oklahoma dispatch declares that the wheat belt of that States is now "surfeited with labor" and that there are "three men for every job in the harvest field." From Kansas City it is reported that "the labor situation throughout the West has changed entirely," and further: "there is more labor here seeking employment than there is employment. Idle men are in evidence amost everywhere. This condition is having its effect on railroad labor in the West, and all are trying to do better so that they may hold their jobs.

Nobody wants to see willing hands idle anywhere, but these Western reports are signs of a return toward more normal conditions of labor. This is highly desirable. More jobs than workers inevitably mean excessive wages, careless labor and underproduction, while more laborers than jobs forces competition in good work and brings full production. There is also reported the encouraging prospect that crops will be "moved," as far as money goes, with as much ease as they will be harvested. Apparently the only remaining difficulty is the great car shortage and general railroad inadequacy, which will interfere with proper distribution and export. Instead of improving, the railroad situation has grown worse since the return to private control, notwithstanding the helping hand still extended by the government.

WHAT AILS THE WORLD

What ails the world, asked a big business magazine of its big business readers. Of course there were many answers. "Too many diamonds and not enough alarm clocks," said one. "Too many silk shirts and not enough blue flannel ones," "Too many automobiles and not enough cows."

But there was one answer that appealed much more strongly than the others. It read:

"Too much class consciousness and too little common democracy and love of humanity."

There are too many people in America conscious that they are rich and great, too many conscious that they are the under dog. The rich man who thinks he is better than somebody else is simply purse proud—his pretensions are sure proof that he lacks brains or that his brains are not functioning properly. The man who thinks he is an under dog because he works is simply foolish and ignorant. It is an ancient saying that "work is noble," but it is true today as it ever was and it will be true forever.

But the main trouble is that there is too little love of humanity these days, too little love of your fellow human. Man is the noblest work of God and He Loves His work. If God oves your neighbor, be he rich or poor, why shouldn't you love him?

The thirty billion dollar indemnity imposed upon Germany by the Allies is probably little if any heavier, relatively, than the one billion dollar indemnity imposed by Germany on France after the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 taking into account the increase in the wealth of nations in the half century. France paid every cent in an amazingly short time. It remains to be seen what Germany will do—or what can be made to do.

The farmers have set the example of other war-scarred lands of Europe an inspiring example. While others are still complaining or wasting time on futile words the French are preparing to reap a bountiful harvest.

When Stoppers Are Obstinate.

Bottle stoppers have a provoking habit of refusing to come out just when one wants them to do so. The following is a sure way of removing the most refractory stopper. By means of a feather apply a drop or two of salad oil just where the stopper fits the neck of the bottle. Invert the bottle and place it in a dish of water warmed but not hot. The oil rapidly works down in between the stopper and the neck and by giving the whole thing a slight tap the stopper will come out.

Rat Always Feared.

Scientists have pointed out that the absence of the rat in the dissemination of plague is well known in all countries. Their precautions carefully provided and, when possible, domesticated the natural enemies of the rat and even dolled some of the more useful ones, as the cat, the kestrel and the cobra. They made special use of rat eating species of snakes, keeping great numbers of these harmless snakes in pits in their medical temples.

Henna Stain on Hair.

Henna leaves, dried and powdered and made into a paste or pomade with hot water, produce a reddish or orange stain and are used largely by eastern peoples for staining the finger nails and finger tips, as well as the hair. The hair is covered with this paste and enveloped with a hot cloth, which is allowed to remain for two or three hours as desired. A mixture of henna and indigo will color the hair jet black if used in the correct proportions.

Feared Burial Alive.

Hans Andersen and Harriet Martineau left specific instructions that they should not be buried until everything had been done to make sure that they were lifeless. So did Wilkie Collins, whose novel "Jezebel's Daughter" contains a thrilling account of a scene in a German deadhouse when an English widow, poisoned and supposed to be dead, sits up and confronts her enemies.

Nature's Supremacy.

Emerson in his essay on Nature says: "At the gates of the forest the surprised man of the world is forced to leave his city estimates of great and small, wise and foolish. The knapsack of custom falls off his back with the first step he makes into these precincts. Here is sanority which shames our fopperies and vanity which discredits our heroes."

Petty Coat.

This was the former spelling of petticoat, which meant the little or short coat worn in other days by men. Henry V. had a "petty coat" of red damask with open sleeves. Afterward the fashion, with skirt variations, was imitated by women, who copied the gown, robe, frock, and blouse, which were all worn in the first place by men.

Education in China.

Literary attainments among the people of South China is greater than among those of the north. Cantonese is advanced in Canton that nearly all the children of Cantonese parentage, except those of the large boat population, can read; whereas in the north it is unusual to find a family the children of which are all placed in school.

Red Squirrels.

The red squirrels are found most abundantly in woods of chestnut, hemlock or oak trees. These little squirrels do not lay up big stores of food as some of the other varieties. In summer time they make excursions to the fields and orchards. Apple seeds are a favorite delicacy.

Light Acts on Door Bell.

A newly married couple, who are both deaf and are trying housekeeping without a servant, have devised an ingenious substitute for a doorbell. When a caller presses the electric button all the lights in the house flash up, and his presence is made known.

Socrates used to say that, although no man undertakes a trade he has not learned, even the meanest, yet every one thinks himself sufficiently qualified for the hardest of all trades, that of government.—Bolingroke.

Homing Umbrella.

According to a trade journal the latest fashion in umbrellas is a pigeon's head carved on the handle. This, we understand, is the first step toward a really reliable homing umbrella.—London Punch.

Old Lumber Best.

BALKED AT "WASTING LIQUOR"

Action of Chief of Secret Service That Caused Retainer to Resign His Position.

They tell the story of Bruce Bielaski, head of the United States secret service, and one of his retainers.

In the old days—before the late unpleasantness—the retainer might have been described as a scholarly sipper. He knew the brands, origin, habitat and bending of every desirable whisky. When he drank he acted like one of the old brandy topers, who have been statutorily obliterated.

He would roll a small sniff and roll the old stuff around in his mouth before the clamorous throat muscles pulled it down. He revered whisky. His slow reading was not shy reading. He was not a drunkard at all, you will understand—merely an enthusiastic connoisseur of liquor.

Bielaski had a room full of whiskies at his Washington headquarters. No one got into that room, either. Every time there was a raid the stuff was placed under lock and key until Bielaski personally superintended its destruction.

The connoisseur of booze used to mourn this waste with tears in his eyes. He said it was a crime, no less. He said he is now convinced that this country is barbarous, and that in its heart it yearns to wear beads on its legs and feathers in its hair. He was orating in this strain one bitterly cold day during the big blizzard when he saw Bielaski come out of his office. Bielaski had a couple of quarts of a celebrated brand under his arm.

He stopped talking. Little flecks of foam appeared in the corners of his mouth. He began to dream of Tennessee meads and Kentucky pastures. His eyes softened and his cheek took on a younger flush.

Then Bielaski poured the liquor in the radiator of his automobile, and the enthusiast violently resigned from the federal service.—Herbert Corey, in Kansas City Star.

BLAME MEXICAN "HOT STUFF"

Pepper and Fiery Liquors May Have Something to Do With the Troubles Down There.

Pepper is the source of Mexican revolutions, according to many people. Hot tamales, chili con carne, which means pepper with meat; chili relenas, chili con queso, or pepper with cheese; all the other hot dishes that delight the Mexican palate, are supposed to incite these fiery Latin-Indian folk to actions that people of more sober nature would not contemplate.

But the border citizens of this country place the greater blame on the liquid refreshments indulged in by our neighbor to the south. Aguardiente, tequila, mescal, drinks that raise stormy passions in the Latin and paralyze the senses of the Anglo-Saxon, are consumed in great quantities.

Tequila, father of comets, sea serpents, misshapen giants, juggernauts and a thousand other monsters, is a white liquid brewed from "bear grass," a desert growing plant with clusters of thick, hard and watery daggerlike leaves with needle points. Mescal, a brew of cactus leaves, is its companion drink, and, mixed, the very smell will put even a prohibition enforcement agent in a state of coma.

Canada's Water Power.

It has been estimated by engineers that the available water power in Canada, both developed and undeveloped, is capable of generating 18,832,000 horsepower, of which 7,398,100 horsepower are available in populated areas.

The utilization of this water power is rapidly increasing. During last year the installation of plants was completed with a total of 64,400 horsepower. Developments now under construction will produce 370,000 horsepower; and projects contemplated for the near future will add 750,000 horsepower. The waterpowers in Canada already developed have a capacity of 2,400,000 horsepower. The "white coal," that for ages had been running to waste, is now being made to turn the wheels of industry and to light Canada's streets and dwellings.

"It is splendid to see the good order that now prevails at political banquets. There was considerable drunkenness at these banquets in the past.

"At a political banquet one evening the chairman said to a rather noisy guest:

"'Excuse me, sir, but may I ask your name?'

"'Morgan's me—hic—name,' the guest answered.

"'I mean your full name,' said the chairman.

"The guest hiccoughed again.

"'It's just the same,' he said, 'full or sober.'"

The Way It Works Out.

The Agent—Have you seen the new ordinance passed by the city council? It forbids rent profiteering under penalty of a hundred-dollar fine.

The Owner—Yep. I saw it. Raise the rent a hundred dollars on each apartment, to pay the fines.

Improving His Method.

Atlas was watching the proceedings of the profiteers.

"These modern fellows," he mused, "know a lot more about holding up the earth than was dreamed of in my young days."

WELL ON ROAD TO WEALTH

Farmer Undoubtedly Has a Great Scheme Unless Some Indignant Motorist Should "Catch On."

Straight ahead lay a long, straight stretch of road and the man at the wheel of the car settled down in his seat. It was evident he was preparing for a rest.

But before he was well under way an honest old farmer stepped from the roadside toward him and held out a detaining hand.

"Thought me'n' ye would be a-goin' to go fell sleep ahead," he remarked casually when the car slid to a standstill.

The motorist nodded in reply.

"Well, just take a look through them air glasses at that tree over the bend," went on the farmer, producing an elderly pair of field glasses, "and happen ye'll change your mind."

"Great Scott!" exclaimed the motorist when the glasses disclosed a blue trousered figure perched on a branch in the tree. "I say, thanks most awfully!"

There was the sound of coin clinking on coin and then the motor went softly down the road at about six miles an hour. And at the beginning of the clear stretch of roadway the honest-eyed farmer was counting his cash.

"The idea o' carting the old scarecrow from the orchard and perching it in that tree works out pretty well!" he chuckled as he heard another car approaching.—London Tit-Bits.

MUSIC IN COST OF LIVING

Inhabitants of Densely Populated Flats in New York City Begin to Take Alarm.

Opening windows on the first warm days of the year bring a warning that this will probably be the most musical season New York has ever seen, says the Evening Star of that city. The apartment-house court has always been cosmopolitan in its musical tastes and prone to profligacy in its volume of more or less musical sounds in summer, and this time it appears that not only are all the young men home from the army but that the high cost of everything has also made the apartments more densely inhabited and more continuously so than ever before.

The guarantee lacking that once drew folk away from home in the evening. Radio is negligible as a corner attraction. The movies are more expensive and more tiresome. Soda is a war tax paid by the dispenser and also charged to the consumer. Home has become a rather forced haven for all and music is being overworked in an attempt to relieve its tedium.

This season we have with us, apparently, not only the phonograph and the player piano—those resources of the musical and unmusical alike—but there is also an apparent return of the child who practices on the piano.

Illuminated Traffic Cop.

With a view to solving the difficulties that beset motorists and traffic officers on Boston streets after nightfall the officers of the First motor corps are conducting experiments throughout the city to make a traffic handier visible to drivers as well as to pedestrians.

An experiment demonstrated that with the help of three light bulbs, which burn continuously, white bands crossed on his breast and long white gauntlets, a traffic officer can be seen by motorists even at the busiest and darkest of corners.

One of the lights is placed on the traffic guard's hat and the other two on his shoulders. They are fed by batteries in the pocket of his overcoat. Both red and white lights have been tried. So far the red lights seem to be more satisfactory.—Boston Globe.

Portable Town Given France.

Many an American tourist will be surprised this summer to find just outside the war-torn city of Lens, France, a quaint Dutch village. The stranger will learn that the village is a gift from the people of Holland to the returning citizens of Lens. The houses all of wood and of an ingenious, knockdown construction, are now awaiting shipment from the Netherlands, where the parts were sawed and fitted. Assembled, they will shelter in comfort 500 refugees. When all the dwellings are occupied, the Dutch government will send landscape gardeners to lay out flower beds and shrubbery in harmony with the buildings.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Thousands of spectators lined the curbs of a business thoroughfare in Oakland, Cal., some weeks ago as a result of the announcement that an airplane was to land and take off from the street. On schedule time the plane appeared overhead, glided down between the walls of the man-made canyon and touched the pavement. Skidding here on the slippery asphalt, the plane grazed a lamp-post, swerved to the curb and damaged its tail skid. The accident was trivial, but served as a warning to the authorities, who promptly forbade the take-off.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Need of a Backyard.

"We simply must have a house with a backyard."

"For the children to play in?"

"No. We have no children, but we've simply got to have a place to throw empty cans."

PUNISHED FOR KINDLY DEED

English Magistrates Seem to Have Dealt Harshly With Man Who "Broke" the Sabbath.

John Bull is an English publication. The letter we are reproducing from its columns was written to the magistrates of the English town of Reading. One wonders if they ever heard of the distinction between the letter and the spirit of the law, remarks Our Dumb Animals.

"Your Worships: I gather you don't go to church on Sundays as a regular thing. Let me tell you why I gather. On a Sunday during the strike a policeman dug up the Sunday observance act in order to convict a poor devil of a drover—Charles Palmer, to-wit—of driving cattle through the streets. The man had fetched the beasts from the railway station, where they had arrived from Dublin. They were then in a bad state. If they had not been removed to be fed and watered they would have been the victims of callous cruelty; and though on this particular Sunday that which is written, 'Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fall into a pit and will not straightway pull him out on the Sabbath day' was part of the gospel, you made the drover pay the costs of his prosecution. To all intent and purpose, therefore, gentlemen, you might as well have convicted and fined him. What a pity it is that the act of 1677 doesn't prohibit Reading magistrates from walking or driving through the streets on Sunday in order to catch their dinner."

VOLCANOES AWAKE TO LIFE

Affording an awe-compelling spectacle of nature in a sullen mood and awakening memories of the ghastly details of the eruption of eight years ago, Mount Katmai, most powerful and restless of North American volcanoes, is again in violent activity, according to Capt. Charles A. Glasscock and Purser Gary Bach of the steamer Admiral Watson, which reached port recently from southwestern Alaska, says the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

A sable pall of smoke from the funnel of the belching crater broods over the northern sky for a radius of 40 or 50 miles by day, while fretful tongues of flame can be seen by vessels a score of miles at sea at night, according to the Seattle mariners.

Knight's peak, a neighboring volcano, has also been stirred to spectacular efforts by the outburst of its more deadly companion, and wreaths of smoke hang over numerous peaks of the rugged Alaska peninsula.

A slight earthquake shock was experienced at Kodiak island the night of April 8, a day before the arrival of the Admiral Watson. Two days later those on the Admiral Watson had a rare view of the volcano.

Submarine Radio.

The last annual report of the bureau of standards states that members of the bureau's staff have developed very successful methods of communicating with submerged submarines by radio-telegraphy. With a single-turn coil or loop attached to the outside of the submarine, signals can be received as well when the vessel is submerged as when it is at the surface. It is also possible to transmit from a submerged submarine a distance of 12 miles. Thus it becomes possible for a ship and a submarine to exchange recognition signals. A coil aerial is a satisfactory direction finder when submerged and readily receives signals transmitted thousands of miles, just the same as when used in the air. The navy has equipped its larger submarines with this apparatus.—Scientific American.

While the Fourteenth cavalry was on the march recently from Fort Sam Houston, Tex., to Fort Ringgold, Tex., an aviator who chanced to pass over their heads acted as their volunteer guide.

The observer in the airplane saw that, instead of the Trio City road, they were following what is known as the Somerset road. He advised them of their error by a message dropped in front of the moving column, and the troop detoured to the correct road.

The air-service officers reported the incident to the chief of operations at Kelly field upon their arrival, and 25 minutes later a map showing the route to their destination, Fort Ringgold, was dropped in the middle of the marching column.

Just What Did He Mean?

Little Henry Hoanhammer is a typical Hoosier youngster, who uses his ears to good advantage. Since prohibition has been enforced in Indiana he has heard a great many remarks made by people who in the past were accustomed to imbibing occasionally. But at Christmas he electrified his family by his own opinion.

The Christmas tree was aglow and everyone was talking about its beauty, etc. Finally it came Henry's time to say something and he did. He looked at the brilliant tree. "Gee, it's all lit up," he sighed, "and I sure wish I was, too."—Indianapolis News.

Hard Luck.

"I was born too early," he sighed.

"What's the matter?"

"I had to wear overalls when they were a badge of hard labor, and now that wearin' 'em is fashionable I'm out of the game."

NEW TEMPLE OF THE GODS

In the ordinary sense, no part of the United States properly can be called unexplored. The new Temple of the Gods, in southern Utah, is a discovery as far as the average tourist is concerned, though by no means is it unexplored or "new" territory. A bare 17 miles to the west runs the well-traveled state highway from Salt Lake City to the Grand canyon. An old trail branches off from the road between Panuitch and Tropica, in Garfield county.

In the distance is Table mountain, plateau, source of the Escalante river; nearer, the broad amphitheater of the Paria valley; at his feet the New Temple itself, a veritable sunken garden, about one by three miles of exquisite daintiness and beauty. With its fortuous walls of marl standing obelisks and towers, castles and fortresses, impressionistic statuary and giant sculptures, kaleidoscopic in their coloring and framed by the tufted yellow pines and the red manzanita.

The startling color changes and lighting effects of this great geological fairy show, indeed, its most extraordinary feature. In the shifting rays of sun and cloud, the tall, slender shafts and ornamental turrets gleam white, glow suddenly to a cherry heat and suddenly cool to purple black.—J. C. Alter in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

BIG GUNS MUST BE MOBILE

Otherwise in Future Wars They Will Be Quickly Wiped Out if "Spotted" From Above.

While the war was in progress new military inventions and improvements were for obvious reasons kept secret in America. Now, however, they are beginning to leak out.

For example, there is a new 14-inch gun, which is called "pride of the army." All big guns in future will be made mobile (on rails or drawn by gasoline tractors), because otherwise they would invite their own destruction. With the help of "spotting" airplanes they might be quickly wiped out.

The guns which now defend American seacoast forts are stationary, and the big ones of no larger caliber than 12 inches. They are to be replaced by 14-inch rifles on mobile mounts, and it is manifest the plans of the fortifications will have to be altered.

Newest American battleships carry 14-inch guns, which have been deemed the most effective weapons of their type in the world. Some of them did duty on land in France toward the end of the war. But this new rifle (a product of army ordnance experts' best ingenuity) is superior in several respects. It will throw a shell 35 miles.

Poor Packing Causes Waste.

Few persons considering the cost of living realize that more than $700,000,000 is added to the cost of their food, clothing and other necessities each year because of the waste caused by damage, unscientific loading and the tremendous cost of packing these commodities. The railroads and the shippers realize it, as shown by their conducting a campaign to reduce to the minimum the waste through damage, and to utilize to the utmost the capacity of freight cars, which are hauled half empty.

These are some of the items which enter into this waste estimate—damage and theft, $[illegible]; wasted lumber used only [illegible] in packing cases, $240,000,000; empty car space, $200,000,000; and the staggering cost to the railroads of hauling half empty cars more than 6[illegible] miles, $157,000,000. It is estimated that from 10 to 25 per cent of the cost of foodstuffs goes to pay for the crates which are thrown away.

Carl R. Gray, the new president of the Union Pacific system, has one hobby—that is his family in which he takes the greatest interest and pride. "When his two boys, who are now at college, were attending preparatory school at Baltimore," says J. G. Donley, Jr., in Forbes' Magazine, "he never missed a baseball or football game in which the school team participated unless he was away from home. And he knew every boy on the teams by his first name. One of his greatest delights was to get out on the baseball field on a summer evening and 'bat flies' to his boys. When not on the road or in his office, he spends all of his time with his family."

His Ambition.

Ten-year-old Ted made his first long visit to the country. He was much impressed with the returns of farming, but not with the work which brought the returns. He studied the occupation of farming diligently in order to see what part of it was easiest. And one day he discovered what he thought was.

Then he went to his mother. "I always said that I would be a farmer when I grow up," he told her, "but I guess I won't be a real farmer. I guess I'll be a hog slopper."

Nothing Doing.

"The overall club is a fine idea for men, but I'm afraid it won't work out."

"Why not?"

"Well, we're going to have trouble if we try to get the women to follow suit and appear in public in house-wrappers."

Roland had found a pencil eraser, and, offering it to his little cousin, he said: "You can have it, Hazel. Do you know how to write?" Then, evidently he happened to think that she would have no use for an eraser unless she made mistakes, for he added: "Do you know how to write wrong?"

To Keep Books Fresh.

To prevent mold on books, place a few drops of lavender and Canadian balsam in a back corner of each shelf. This will not injure the bindings of leather books as sulphur compounds do, but helps to preserve the bindings. The two substances are easily obtained.

To Mend Umbrellas.

Umbrella handles sometimes become loosened from the steel rods. Put some resin in an iron spoon and hold it over the gas or on a hot stove until thoroughly melted; then pour it into the cavity in the handle and put the steel rod into it. Hold it firm until the resin is cold.

Beginning the Quarrel.

Mr. Styles—"So you have changed your mind?" Mrs. Styles—"Yes, I have." Mr. Styles—"When did you change it?" Mrs. Styles—"While I was changing my dress." Mr. Styles—"But it doesn't usually take as long as that, dear."—Yonkers Star.

Sanskrit Oldest Language.

The oldest known language is Sanskrit, the ancient language of the Hindus; long since obsolete in vernacular but preserved to the present day as the literary and sacred language of India. It is a sort of mother of languages, many of those of Europe being largely based on it.

The Movie Kiss.

The osculature test movie kiss, popularly known as a clinch, is not properly a kiss, but a form of adhesion closely resembling vulcanizing.—Robert Quillen in the Saturday Evening Post.

Music Attachment for Big Clocks.

As an attachment for large clocks an inventor has developed a device governed by a perforated paper roll to play a different air on tune pipes just before each hour is struck.

A Lesson Unlearned.

"It may be true to say that the only way to get happiness is to give it, yet a lot of people don't seem to have learned it."—Forbes Magazine.

Shooting Fish.

The shooting fish brings down insects a distance of from one to four feet by squirting them with water from its mouth.

Give Your Motor Truck Driver a Tire He Can Depend On

THE man who tells you that motor truck drivers are not interested in the efficient and economical operation of their trucks has never been in a garage when the trucks were coming in from their day's hauls.

Tire splitting and base separation are not things that truck drivers thought up to annoy their employers.

Until the new U. S. Grainless Rubber Solid Truck Tire was created, no way had ever been found to prevent solid tires from splitting. Nor had anyone ever been able to prevent base separation.

As representatives of the oldest and largest rubber company in the world it is our privilege to introduce this new tire to the owners and drivers of this city.

Give your driver a tire that he can depend on—that he doesn't have to nurse and be thinking of all the time—and watch how much more efficiently your trucks operate.

And how your tire costs go down.

In purchasing a new truck consult us about the type of tires to specify.

How Bridal Veil Originated.

The bridal veil is said to have originated in the ancient custom of performing the marriage ceremony under a square piece of cloth, held over the bridal couple to conceal the blushes of the bride. At the marriage of a widow it was not used.

Those who have been able to catch sight of shells passing through the air have described them as appearing "like long lead pencils with indistinct blurred edges."

USE FRUIT TO MAKE JARS

Common Household Utensils Constructed of Peculiar Ware in Central Province of India.

There is a peculiar ware that is made by the Banjaras in the central provinces of India from the fruit of the bel tree. The fruit is collected and dried. It is then boiled in water until quite soft and pounded, the stones removed and the pulp beaten up and worked with the hands into a thick, brown, sticky mass. When this is ready for use the manufacturer takes an earthen vessel—any shape that pleases him—and covers it all over with a thick layer or coat of the pulp. This is then put aside to set a bit, and when hard rude devices are stamped round the neck and shoulders of the article, which is then set aside to dry. When entirely hard the gharra inside is broken and the pieces removed. These vegetable jars are sold according to size from four to eight annas each.

The bela tree is abundant throughout the forests of tropical India and Burma, and the fruits are frequently employed in medicine and for tanning.

Another material used for making jars is the root of the great asphodel. The fleshy root of this plant, by drying in a sand oven and grinding, is prepared into a flour, which, when mixed with hot water, yields a most tenacious vegetable glue with which the Persians make great vessels for holding oil and clarifying butter. The native cobblers employ it in preference to animal glue in their work.

KAFRISTANS A WARLIKE RACE

Hereditary Foes of Afghans, Their Chief Form of Diversion Is in Murderous Forays.

Adjoining Afghanistan, and now under the same government, is Kafristan, a hilly country inhabited by primitive but most interesting people. Like the Afghans they are warlike and hospitable, but perhaps owing to the abundance of vines in the country, are great wine bibbers. Hitherto they have been the hereditary enemies of the Afghans, and still the raids and forays on peaceful Afghan villages are regarded as the choicest form of sport.

The gatherings of young warriors for an attack on the Afghans are the occasion of all-night revels, and a selection is made of the most promising volunteers, an exchange says. The raid lasts about a fortnight, and on its return the party kindles bonfires on a hilltop to announce its arrival. On seeing the beacon the whole neighborhood flocks to the spot, and whoever has killed a Mussulman is carried shoulder high to the village, where dancing and festivities are carried on in celebration of his feat. He who can boast of no victim is treated as an outcast and his fellow villagers give him food over their shoulders.

In Constantinople Streets.

Procession of all kinds are to be found in the streets of Stamboul, and with no traffic regulations it is difficult to make much headway. In "The Daily Pageant of Stamboul" in the Travel Magazine, Miss Lucy Garnett finds herself in mixed society. "In company with a large drove of turkeys we take our way along the broad straight street, lined on either hand with shops. Presently the turkeys get into difficulties with a file of hamals bearing on their Atlas-like shoulders piles of bedding and curiously decorated chests and coffers. Those bales and chests constitute the wedding trousseau and 'pleroshing' of a Turkish bride." The turkeys are soon remarshaled to be dispersed many times before they are finally landed safely near the great mosque where they are to be sold in celebration of a Moslem festival.

Happiness in Gladness.

"Be glad!" When you have said all there is to say about life's sorrow, disappointment and pain, about the selfishness and wrong that sweep over the earth like shadows, about the shortness of its days and the certainty of its nights, it still remains blessedly true that the universe is thrilling with the song of gladness," says a helpful writer.

"Be glad for the beauty of the springtime, the blue of the skies, the music of the birds and the glory of the sunsets. Listen to the laughter of the little children, answer to the handclasp of friendship, grow warm in the lovelight of countless happy hours and be sure that somewhere over and above all is a great Love that makes all these things possible."

The secret of happiness lies in your own attitude toward life.—Orison Swett Marden in Chicago Daily News.

Hanging May baskets seems to be a purely American custom, which probably was fostered in New England. At least, among all the varied pastimes with which the day has been associated, there is no mention of May baskets in the old histories of the day.

In New England, particularly, the May basket is exceedingly popular, especially in the rural sections. In the country, a girl hangs a May basket on the door of the house in which her beau lives. Then she rings the bell and runs. If he catches her before she reaches home, he is entitled to a kiss.

In the cities, the young folks are usually content to send their offerings through the mail or by a messenger boy.

MARINE WAYS STRIKE IS DECLARED OFF

The strike of the carpenters and caulkers of the Elizabeth Marine Ways for $1.00 an hour was declared off last Saturday and the men returned to work on Monday at the old wages, after being idle for about nine days. When the vote to strike or not to strike was taken, about one-fourth of the men voted against the move, but when the majority voted in favor of the strike they bowed to the will of the majority and quit work. The laborers continued at work. After the strike had been on for some days it was discovered that all the yards and docks had not joined the strike and were still working. This being the case the men had no other alternative and returned to work.

Noted for Its Tobacco.

Much of the wealth of Virginia and of her capital has always been based on the lure of the Virginia weed. In November, 1918, a tobacco warehouse covering 90,000 square feet of space, and said to be the largest in the South, was completed in the prosperous little country town of South Boston, Va., in one of the principal tobacco-growing sections of the old state. At an auction held at this house on opening day 350,000 pounds of leaf tobacco, arranged in 3,500 piles, brought $125,000.

Birds and Flowers.

It has been estimated that there are 2,000 varieties of wild flowers growing in the Rocky Mountain National park, and more than 1,000 species of birds building their homes in the firs, aspens, spruces and willows of that section. Even the tiny humming bird and the forget-me-nots find life easy on the summit of Pike's peak. Some of the other flowers are the fringed gentians, columbine, buttercups and daisies and delicate pinks.

Few Large Rubies Known.

Unlike the diamond and emerald, rubies of large size are exceedingly rare, but mention has been made of a few in the works of Marco Polo, Mandeville and other travelers in the Orient, which may be believed or not by present-day readers as the great gems to which they refer have all been lost to sight for centuries, unless they are stored away among the secret treasures of Persia, Burma or China.

Where He Got the Name.

The first bulldog appears to have been bred from the English mastiff, and by process of systematic selection in breeding a smaller and more active dog than the mastiff was evolved. The smaller dog was found to be better suited for sport than the heavier and slower mastiff. The bull-baiting dog, without a doubt, required an inordinate amount of gameness.

Plants That Feed on Animals.

That such plants as "Venus' flytrap" actually catch and squeeze to death flies and other insects alighting on their leaves has long been known, but the discovery is comparatively recent that the plants digest the softer parts of their prey by means of peptic ferment secreted by the leaves. These are real instances of plants feeding upon animals.

Slavery.

The Portuguese were the first to hunt negroes in the interior of Africa for use as slaves in the colonies. The first shipment of negroes to the New World took place in 1503, when the Portuguese landed some in Santo Domingo. From that time to the nineteenth century traffic in negroes across the Atlantic was carried on.

Made Attractive Scene.

Formerly a favorite Mecca of the tourist in Virginia tobacco towns was the tobacco factory, where the industry in progress made a picturesque scene, and the singing by negro hands, as they worked, of the quaint and melodious folk and spiritual songs of her race, provided unique entertainment.

No Salt Exhaustion.

Fuel eventually will be exhausted, as so will many other necessities, but not so with salt. Drillers for oil in Texas and Louisiana recently found great salt deposits a few hundred feet below the surface. Some of these beds were 2,000 feet thick.

How to Get On.

Practice yourself, for heaven's sake, in little things; and thence proceed to greater. This is the advice of Epictetus.

Truly Great Heart.

His heart was as great as the world, but there was no room in it to hold the memory of a wrong.—Emerson.

First Woman's College.

The first woman's college incorporated as such, was Elmira college founded in 1852.

WEST BETHLEHEM MAY BE DIVIDED

the high school, which for years was situated in Scenery Hill, but which a few years ago was moved to Marianna. One school director is reported to have been showered with stale eggs as he was enroute to his home along a highway.

In 1919 the high school was moved from Scenery Hill to Marianna. At the election last fall the Scenery Hill contingent apparently scored a victory when the old member of the board of five was chosen, he being elected as a Scenery Hill advocate. At a meeting of the Board some weeks ago he cast his ballot in favor of Scenery Hill and it was decided to move the high school back to that town from Marianna. Equipment and books were immediately transferred.

At a more recent meeting this decision was reversed by the board and the equipment and books are now being moved back to Marianna. When the wrangle reached this stage, the movement was launched to have the township split into two separate districts corresponding to the present voting precincts.
